Daily Appeal.

SEVERAL FASHIONS.
We present our readers with a description of the various styles of fashions prevailing in the market.

In England ladies' hats for the season, still were at least three, are indicated, with a wide brim and a small crown. In white silk, trimmed with a wreath of orange blossoms, and with bows in shades of pink and white.

For black velvet bows, placed rather forward under the front. This same style, however, is very elegant, ornamented with a bonnet of white lace, and with bows made of white ribbon.

The sleeves are very long, and the bodice is open in front to the waist, and the skirt is full.

The dress is a gown of a beautifully soft shade of drab. It is trimm'd with small bows, and the sleeves are trimm'd with ribbons.

The dress is a gown of a black velvet, with a wide collar, and a bow in the middle.

Several elegant dresses, exhibited in one of the principal saloons, are very attractive. The first is a dress of a beautifully soft shade of drab. It is trimm'd with small bows, and the sleeves are trimm'd with ribbons.

The dress is a gown of white silk, with a wide collar, and a bow in the middle.

A third is a rich black velvet. This dress is also trimm'd round the skirt with bows; and the bodice is trimm'd with a wreath of orange blossoms.

These are all of white, except of pink roses, which are white—shades from light to dark.

Another is a white, with bows in shades of pink, and the sleeves are trimm'd with ribbons.
